SILK STOCKINGS

LONG WEAR FROM GOOD SILK STOCKINGS is assured if you follow these simple directions:

OWN SEVERAL PAIRS, wear them in rotation. Each night rinse them with tepid water and Ivory soap the pair worn that day. After rinsing out all the soap, hang them to dry indoors, where strong sunlight will not strike them, thereby preventing the colors from fading. The chief enemy of silk stockings is soil from perspiration and dust—also leather stains from shoe linings. Remove these each night after wearing, by the brief washing suggested, and you eliminate the likelihood of worn spots or broken threads appearing unduly early.

THE ITALIANS CONTINUE THEIR OFFENSIVE

(By Associated Press)
The Italians have surprised the Austrians by continuing on the offensive. The Asipio plateau has been practically cleared and 400 Austrians taken prisoners.

This sudden turn of the Italians reuniting the offensive has not been confined to around Montedison. Further east near Branta they have captured the heights Sasso Rosso. Gen. Diaz has probably routed the Austrians from the mountains which was the key to the Italian situation. Throughout the Italians carried the fight to the foe and their advances have done much to interfere with the preparation for a new German offensive.

The French War Office issued the following statement:

"There is nothing to report except quite marked artillery activity between the Quercy and the Marne and the region east of Rheims."

German attacks southwest of Soissons to recover positions won by the French Thursday night were repulsed. The War Office announced Sunday. The Italians repulsed an attack southwest of Rheims.

The statement reads: "Two German attacks for the purpose of retaking French positions south of the Aisne which were occupied by the French on Thursday night, were repulsed. An attack by a number of German battalions between Fosse-en-Bas and Gully Ravine was repulsed along the new front and the French lines were held intact."

"Southwest of Rheims, the Italians engaged in a sharp combat with the Germans on Bligny Heights. German detachments which had succeeded for the moment in obtaining a foothold in the Italian front lines were driven back. Along the French front a number of surprise attacks were carried out during the night."

In the forest of Apremont in the Lorraine sector, the French likewise took prisoners and captured material. Quiet prevailed on the British front in northern France, according to the official report from Field Marshal Haig Sunday. The text of the statement follows:

"Beyond the usual artillery activity on both sides there is nothing to report."

Heavy artillery fighting on both sides is in progress in the Nieppe Forest region, says the morning report. The text reads:

"The total number of prisoners taken by us in yesterday's successful operation east of Nieppe Forest exceeds 400. This figure does not include those taken west of Meuse. Two German field guns, in addition to a number of machine guns and trench mortars, also were captured by us. The hostile artillery has been neutralized."

five opposite Valre Wood, south of the Somme and west of Fochy (Arras sector).

There has been increased artillery activity on both sides in the Nieppe Forest sector."

MILL WORKERS STRIKE TODAY

(By Associated Press)
Lowell, June 30.—Cotton mills here engaged almost exclusively on war work, and employing 15,000 operatives, will be effected by the vote of the textile unions as indorse at a mass meeting today, for a strike beginning Monday.

The operatives affiliated with the United Textile Workers of America, of which John Golden is president, demand an increase in wages of five per cent in addition to the 10 per cent advance just announced by the manufacturers.

Under the terms of the strike order, union men will remain away from the mills Monday morning.

Mill managers say the mill gates will be open Monday morning for every one who wishes to work under the 10 per cent increase. The union members desire they will not go to work Monday unless there is a 15 per cent increase.

Pres. Golden will conduct the strike and will be present at a meeting of the strikers at 11 a. m. Monday.

No committee will be appointed by the union to wait on the mill agents, it is announced.

Mr. Golden predicted that the strike would seriously affect the Appleton, Hamilton, Manchester, Merrimack, Lowell, Tremont and Kattok mills, and that the Lawrence Hosiery mill would probably be involved.

Some of the mill officials pointed out that the operatives had received a total advance of 25 per cent in the last two years and asserted that business did not warrant a further increase.

President Golden, on the other hand, said at the mass meeting that the scale of wages paid here was below that in New Bedford and Fall River and that increased living costs, due to war conditions, made the increase necessary.

CASUALTY LISTS TO DATE

(By Associated Press)
Washington, June 30.—The army casualty list today included 71 names including 11 New Englanders. There were 48 in the marine list only one being from New England. Total losses in the American Expeditionary forces up to date amount to 10,333 of whom 1,252 were in the Marine Corps.

George Hall of Manchester, N. H., and Frank F. Bell, a machinist of Saco, Me., brothers, met last week for the first time in 35 years. George went to the machine shop in Saco where his brother is employed, and, walking up, said, "Hello, Frank, you are some stranger, how's the world doing you?" Frank looked the stranger over, before he discovered it was his brother, who left home in 1883.

Troops 1 and 2 of the Boy Scouts of Randolph made a canvass of the town recently to ascertain the number of black walnut trees in the town. The woods and lots of the town were searched from end to end of the town to the other. The scouts performed the work for the Government.

Portsmouth, N. H., Monday, July 1, 1918.

A Momentous Celebration.

The Fourth of July, the anniversary of the birth of the United States as a free and independent nation, is almost at hand again and preparations are being made for its proper observance not only here, but also in England and France, with which this country has been brought into such close touch by the greatest war in history, which is being waged in the cause of freedom for all nations.

The form of the observance this year will be far different from that of the old days, in which noise was the chief element in the day's activities. Powder was freely burned and each succeeding Fourth brought its list of casualties. But this feature has been largely done away with in recent years. The people have come to see the folly of turning the country into a pandemonium even for one day in celebrating one of the most important events in history and have devised more sensible means for expressing their joy and patriotism.

This year the launching of ships will be a conspicuous feature of the celebration, and under the circumstances nothing could be more appropriate. The war has made it necessary for the nation to engage in ship building on a large scale and with the greatest energy. Every shipyard is rushed to capacity and vessels are being turned out with amazing rapidity. It was decided some time ago to make the Fourth of July a general launching day, and when the day comes there will go into the water nearly 100 vessels of wood and steel with an aggregate tonnage approaching half a million.

And there will be a mighty significance to these launchings. They will show not only to the people of this country but to the nations of the world that the United States is playing her proper part in the great world drama, a part which was assumed from no selfish or ambitious motives, but to preserve and extend such freedom as has been enjoyed here since the first Fourth of July celebration, and to close the doors forever in the face of all attempts to subject the world to the domination of brute force.

To Americans the coming Fourth will be a solemn day and a joyful day. They will not forget that the country is facing a stupendous and sobering task, but they will be encouraged and cheered by the knowledge that it is rising to the occasion with a might born of unbounded resources and a spirit that demands justice and fair play for all peoples.

The launching of this large number of vessels on a single day for a single purpose will be a memorable incident in the history of this country, and the event will not be without local interest, as three ships will be moved into the water at the Newington yards. It will be a day to be remembered here and throughout the country, and the results of its activities will mean much to the whole world.

Representatives of many nations will take part in the celebration of the Fourth at Mount Vernon, Va., the home of Washington, and the address will be delivered by President Wilson, who by his present position is better fitted than any other man in the world to address all nations. It will be a remarkable gathering under remarkable conditions, and the words spoken by the president will be carried to the ends of the earth.

Kittery Point will not be so much of a summer resort this year as usual, two hotels having been taken over by the government for the use of navy yard workmen. But one thing is certain—there will be no empty rooms in those hotels this season, and the patronage is liable to extend beyond the summer months.

The local tax rate will be no higher than it was last year, but this result is achieved in a way which will cause property owners to sit up and take notice. The tax rate has been kept down by increasing valuations. And yet, all things considered, the people of Portsmouth have little cause for complaint.

The employment bureau opened by the Chamber of Commerce should serve a useful purpose in bringing employers and workmen into contact with each other. The public is invited to make free use of this utility, and on the response to the invitation will depend the benefits to be derived.

The call has come for the mobilization of 220,000 draft registrants the latter part of July, and New Hampshire's quota is 721. America's part in the year is far past the "negligible" stage.

No change in the draft age just yet. The authorities are convinced that the supply of men within the present limits is sufficient for the time being, and without doubt it is.

It should now be understood that bay rum is the only brand permissible in Portsmouth barber shops.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

A Will That Testified of Love

(From the Indianapolis News)

The will of the late Charles Warren Fairbanks, in which he bequeathed $50,000 to the city of Indianapolis and other large sums to charitable institutions, is marked by the great love he had for his wife, the love he bore for his home town, reflecting also the affection and esteem in which the late Mrs. Fairbanks held this city, and the imagination that led him to perpetuate the memory of his wife for five centuries of time. No more touching tribute has been given the life and work of Mrs. Fairbanks than that written by her husband:

The said sum with the interest thereon shall be known as "The Cornelia Cole Fairbanks Memorial" to commemorate the life and virtues of a great woman, who was an inspiration to better living and doing and whose holy influences I gratefully acknowledge. She was an ideal Christian wife and mother, making home an altar of love and devotion; a patriot who inculcated love of country and its institutions; a lover of Indianapolis, who sought to advance its intellectual, moral and physical well-being; a friend of the poor, counting no service or sympathy in their behalf too great. She was democratic in manner and thought; a scholar and a speaker of attractive and persuasive power; a friend and wise counselor of the young and a passionate lover of her own sex, which she was easy to exalt.

The public memory is short. Those who died are soon forgotten unless by some conspicuous act they especially endeared themselves to their city, their state or their nation. Certain men and women have died, yet they still live. Each year serves to bring a stranger, firmer realization of their goodness and true worth. This will be true in the case of Mr. and Mrs. Fairbanks. The Democratic State Convention, differing in politics from Mr. Fairbanks, did a graceful homage to him in its platform.

Germany's Ghastly Threats

(From the New York Times)

There are signs that Germany is preparing to see if it can shock the world by a new kind of atrocity, though one would have supposed that nothing she could do now would even startle the human race. She seems to be seeking an excuse to commit some horror or other as a reprisal for imaginary injuries. The first sign we recall was her threat to the United States Government that unless we released a German convicted of felony in the civil courts, Franz von Rintelen, by name, she would inflict certain undescribed injuries on American prisoners of war. At about the time of that occurrence, or soon after, there appeared threats in the German papers against American prisoners, based on the false charge that German officers are being maltreated in American prisons.

Now comes the announcement of the Deutsche Tageszeitung that it is proved to be true that China has interned 10,000 Germans. Germany will seize and imprison an equal number of French people—not in Germany, but in the occupied districts of France. The Tageszeitung announces that the Germans must not only be removed from their status of internment, but must be "compensated for their losses."

If need not be pointed out that any country at war with Germany has the right to intern German subjects, and that if such a country does so, there is no reason or excuse for reprisal; or that it is not reprisal at all, but mere barbarity, to imprison the inhabitants of an occupied district. Neither need we waste any words on the mendacity of all these threats. Germany has acquiesced in the world so well with her savagery that words are not called for. All we aim to do is to prepare our readers for some new manifestation of her peculiar gifts, which seems to be either forthcoming or else in contemplation as a thing she would like to do if she dared. It has often been observed that when Germany suffers a reverse on the battlefield she avenges herself in some atrocious manner on the helpless, and something of this kind seems to be what she has in mind now, and for the same reason.

Tokio to Fairhaven

(From the Boston Herald)

The celebration of American Independence Day this year will be in a number of countries an unprecedented international event. And so will it be to a certain extent, strange as this may seem, in the Massachusetts town of Fairhaven. There Japan will come into the ceremony and shake hands with America. Viscount Ishii, the Japanese ambassador, is not going to Fairhaven simply as a public man who has been invited to deliver a Fourth of July oration. He has a special mission, the final chapter of a pretty story which he will doubtless tell with his wonted eloquence, but which needs no more than its plain facts to capture the hearts of the people. Seventy-five years ago Capt. Whitfield, the commander of a Fairhaven whaler, saved from drowning in the China Sea a Japanese named Nakahama, and brought him to Fairhaven, where he lived happily for several years before returning to Japan. It now becomes evident that he afterward spoke gratefully to his family of the rescue by the whaler and the kindness of the son, Dr. Nakahama, of the action of the Fairhaven skipper, has asked the Japanese ambassador to present to the town a Samurai sword of the fourteenth century, a gift beyond price. So here we have quite a poetic tale, gracefully crowned with an act of courtesy which is also an act of filial devotion. It seems very fitting that this should take place at Fairhaven, where filial affection is nobly represented by the beautiful church which the late Mr. Henry Rogers built in memory of his mother.

Baseball in War Time

(From the Boston Globe)

It is an interesting question that has been raised in the "work or fight" ruling of Provost Marshal Gen. Crowder, whether or not organized baseball is an "essential industry," and whether or not ball players must seek other occupations considered more essential to the prosecution of the war. After some weeks' agitation, the matter is soon to be settled.

It is not a question as to whether ball players within the draft limit should be called, they have responded to the call as a matter of course. Nor does the question seriously affect the problem of man power. The number of ball players is too small to be of importance in itself, especially since they are employed in the game only a comparatively few months of the year. It is a question of principle, raised in order that a precedent may be established for future action. On this basis it would seem that there is justification for classing baseball as a useful occupation, since the theatrical performers have already been so classed.

Much is said of the morale of the soldiers across the sea, which is contributing and will contribute to the eventual success of the Allies. There is great need that the morale of the Nation, at home also should be maintained at an equally high level. To the extent to which everyone here in the United States keeps normal, keeps sane, and maintains a condition of the nerves which will prevent panics and other extremes, and which will maintain at the highest possible level the production of guns, supplies and the many necessities of our soldiers, to that extent is the task of our soldiers made more easy.

HUNDREDS OF MILL HANDS ON STRIKE

(By Associated Press)

Boston, July 1.—Colton mill operatives at Lowell, Manchester, Pawtucket and Woonsocket struck today for an increase in wages. At Lowell 75 per cent of the 15,000 operatives reported for work, but union leaders declared that those who remained away generally were skilled workers and that the work could not be carried along without them.

At Manchester at the Amoskeag and Stark mills engaged largely on government contracts, were closed with only a small part of the 15,000 operatives reporting for duty.

In the Blackstone valley, in the vicinity of Pawtucket, loom fixers and weavers failed to report for work in 27 mills and similar conditions existed in a number of Woonsocket establishments.

The Savings Stamp campaign at the local navy yard closed with pledges to the amount of $140,000. Already stamps to the amount of $25,000 have been sold.

Making Ensigns

Since the United States entered the war a large number of enlisted men in the navy have been found to have the necessary qualifications for commissions. A number of officers, and Secretary Daniels has selected seventeen more bluejackets for appointment as ensigns for temporary service, the nominations have been sent to the Senate. In addition nine temporary warrant officers recently appointed from the ranks were also nominated to be ensigns in the navy for temporary service. The nominations were:

Enlisted men to be ensigns—Frederick A. Lawrence, Harry L. Hill, Truman E. Ayers, George W. Travis, Lewis E. Shaw, Meares B. Cartmel, James F. Jeter, John J. Dem, Francis P. Martin, James L. Freese, Myron T. Grubham, Charles P. Adams, Richard L. Jones, Edgar J. Hayden, Wendell Hainsay, Christopher Belland, Hafford C. Southall.

Warrant officers to be ensigns—George Puffie, John P. Hildman, Louis B. Haper, Walter P. H. Nolte, William H. Mann, Jr., John M. Schmitz, rauter, Franklin R. Cook, Donald E. Martin, and Fred A. Hauser.

Floyd Walthall, who distinguished himself while in Hattowith, Kan., as a poet, is doing equally well in St. Joseph, where he is working in a packing house.

ARRESTED 3 TIMES AT OLD ORCHARD

Old Orchard, July 1.—William Carlsmith, a former opera singer who has also appeared as one of the stars at the Malmo musical festival in past years, was one of four people three times arrested and three times, arranged before Judge Percy Lombard Sunday in the crusade against Sunday amusements at this resort. She is the daughter of the late Brig. Gen. Wesley Smith, once head of the Malmo Patriarchs Militant. The others arrested were Martha Hoffman, Samuel Pellen and Constantine Bachmann.

Seaside Park was the only place where any attempt was made to conduct amusements, in defiance of the law, and it was the persistence of the quarter aimed that led to their arrests three times by Chief of Police William J. Mewer.

The first time they were taken into custody they were taken before Judge Lombard and arraigned on the charge of breaking the Sunday law. They gave bail for their appearance today and then returned to the park and resumed business.

A second time the chief arrested them, arraigning followed, bail was given as before and then the procedure was repeated when it was found that the amusements were once more running. After the third arrest, however, the opera singer and the other three abandoned further attempts to attract the crowds.

SEN. TILLMAN IS DYING IN WASHINGTON

Washington, July 1.—Senator Benjamin R. Tillman, one of the most picturesque figures ever identified with American politics, was stricken with paralysis Sunday and his condition is so precarious that hope for his recovery has been virtually abandoned. Members of the family have been summoned. It is feared he will not live another day.

This is the second time Senator Tillman has suffered a stroke of paralysis. When first stricken several years ago it was thought he would not survive. But his rugged physique finally pulled him through and he returned ultimately to the Senate and was elected chairman of the important naval committee when the Democrats came into power. Ever since his first attack he had been more or less crippled. His step had been slower and he used a stick, but his mind was as alert as ever.

If Senator Tillman should die it is believed that Representative Lever, chairman of the House committee on agriculture, who, two weeks ago, was persuaded by President Wilson to withdraw as a candidate for the nomination for the Senate, may be thrown back into the Senate race in South Carolina.

POLICE COURT

Several offenders faced the court today and the majority of them were non-residents.

Alex Hiron and George Ruberge from somewhere in Massachusetts, did some riding on the R. & M. to get from Boston to this city and in the meantime they had a glorious time. They were passengers on the Bar Harbor express and when the train arrived at Portsmouth they were led to the world in the smoker. They failed to hear the call of the trainmen and were carried to Portland. They came back on the morning Pullman at 3 o'clock and had the same jag which they carried from Boston through two dry states.

Officer Weston, at the depot, said they were drunk and they started an argument as to what constitutes a drunk, but it was short. The officer took them in and today they still insisted that they were absolutely sober. The court held up the case till six o'clock tonight.

Gerino Juffrel and Gaspar Gerlin, two more passengers for Portsmouth, got off the Pullman Saturday night. Besides an 18 knot skin suit, they had a load of cabbage, hams, hologna, herring and other eats. They were unable to carry the inside or outside load and the cap told them so. They didn't see where the cap fitted, but he trotted them both to the caboose. The whole thing cost them $11.35 each today.

James Driscoll and John Varrell got the same ticket for $11.35.

William H. Cordes of New York was going some with his automobile on Richards avenue on Sunday, according to Officer Shannon. William says he is not a speedster and was violating no law. The court held up his case until next Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. In the meantime he is out on personal bail.

AUTO MAIL SERVICE FAILS TO MATERIALIZE

Because of the failure of the large auto truck to arrive from the manufacturer, the auto parcel post service between Portland and New York, via this city and Amesbury which was scheduled to go into effect today, had to be postponed.

The route from Portland to this city and Amesbury and return is the first lap of the long relay. The machine is due here at 10.45 a. m. leaving at 11 a. m. and on the return trip from Amesbury is due to arrive here at 2.40 p. m. and to leave at 2.55 p. m. for Portland. One trip is made a day. The local postoffice officials were expectantly looking for the arrival of the truck until a late hour this afternoon, but it failed to show up.

HAMPTON MILE BRIDGE OPENED

Hampton Mile Bridge was opened to both automobiles and electric car traffic on Saturday after being out of commission for several months when several hundred feet were carried away by an ice floe last winter, and more recently destruction by fire of that part already rebuilt.

There was a continuous stream of automobiles over the bridge all day, the most of them being Massachusetts machines on their way to Hampton Beach.

The trolley cars are now running direct to Salisbury Beach and Haverhill thus saving the roundabout trip via Hampton and Smithtown which has been necessary the last few months.

PATRIOTIC PARADE WAS A SUCCESS

The patriotic parade on Saturday afternoon under the direction of the Metal Trades Council in connection with opening of the new co-operative store on Market Street was a grand success and about 1500 men and women representing the various trade unions were in line. The parade was under the charge of Chief Marshal Pickering and the officers of the various localities were in charge of the divisions. The parade was headed by the Portsmouth City Band, B. L. Richmond leader and at various intervals in the line were the Dover Military and Somerset Bands and the Forester Army Corps. Nearly all of the trade organizations carried American flags and made a fine appearance. On the arrival at Market Square the assembly was addressed by J. G. Burrage of New York who has been identified for years with the co-operative movement. He proved a very interesting speaker and answered the numerous questions put to him by his listeners. The men identified with the various trade organizations can well feel pleased with the appearance they made in their initial parade.

The line of march was from the playgrounds where the organizations formed at 2 p.m. to Parrott avenue, to Richards avenue, to Middle Street, to the square. Originally it was intended to have the speaking on the square but on account of lack of room the march was continued to the playgrounds where the speaking took place. The parade was headed by the officers and directors of the metal trades council. The officers are: President, Harry L. Harford; vice president, H. Clark; secretary, George Gates; recording secretary, Fred Dick; treasurer, Fred Pray; clerk, H. O. Farrington.

The following unions participated in the parade: Carpenters, Joiners, Shipbuilders, Plumbers, Boiler-makers, Steamfitters, Fitters, Electricians, Machinists, Boat Builders, Iron Workers, Steel Metal Workers, Painters, Caulkers, Federal Employees, Painters, Musicians, Musons, Blacksmiths, Molders, Chauffeurs, Shipbuilders, Helpers, Woodworkers, Helpers, Clear Makers, Engineers, Firemen, Trackmen, General Helpers and Italian laborers.

ELECTRIC CAR JUMPS RAILS AT KITTERY

Miss Frances Sadler Taken to Portsmouth Hospital With Sprained Ankle.

Car 21, on the Portsmouth, Dover and York street railway, which left the ferry at 8.40 o'clock Sunday night, near the Austin school at Port Hill, Kittery, while going at moderate speed, the front wheels left the tracks entirely blocking the traffic for some time. There were four passengers on the car at the time and as the front truck left the iron one woman, Miss Frances Sadler, a summer visitor at Kittery Point, jumped, spraining her right ankle. She was taken to the Portsmouth Hospital for treatment. Motorman Charles Hook was at the controls and conductor.

It was with difficulty that she was got ashore and it took some little time for her to regain consciousness. It was with difficulty that she was taken ashore by Richard Fullam and John Connors of Portsmouth who were attracted by her cries for help. DR. M. D. IRIZAR
OF CUBA TO VISIT U. S.

(By Associated Press)
Washington, June 29.—The coming visit of Dr. Mario Diaz Irizar, of Cuba, to the United States for conference with business men and other officials of the Pan-American Trademark Bureau, of which Dr. Irizar is director in North America, is expected to result in greatly furthering the protection of manufacturers who are endeavoring to increase their export trade in Latin-American countries.
The matter of trade-marked articles in Latin-America has caused great trouble to business men and has long offered a wide field for unscrupulous adventures and notably for Germans, some of whom have secured large amounts of money from American manufacturers by methods closely resembling blackmail. Patents and copyrights come under the same head and efforts are being made by the Pan-American Trademark Bureau to correct the evils that have grown up in pirating the good names of reliable manufactured articles.
The purpose of the pirates is never to manufacture, according to William C. Wells, chief statistician of the Pan-American Union.

"They simply register the trademark," he said today, "and thereafter control the selling of the article in the country in which they have registered it. That is all that is necessary under the laws of all the Latin-American countries.
The object of the Pan-American Trademark Bureau is to prevent this fraudulent registration. All the countries of both Americas are interested in the bureau which has branches in North and South America. The modus operandi of the man who registers trademarks is simple. All he has to do is to find some article that is being advertised extensively in the United States and of which there is a probability that it will be introduced in his country.
"The registration fee is usually small and when the trickster has made his registration, he sits back and waits for the business to come to him. When the manufacturer comes to introduce his article in that country he finds that he has to deal with the man who registered it. Sometimes he has to pay a big royalty or a large lump sum to be permitted to operate there.

"It is to correct this state of affairs that the bureau was organized. It was pointed out by an official in Washington that United States manufacturers can easily circumvent the trademark pirates by changing the trademark when he is ready to introduce the article in any country where it has been fraudulently registered.

"But these manufacturers are loath to do this," said the official. "They think that the trademark is the valuable thing about the article. They are also sentimental about it. As a matter of fact the trademark is frequently a drawback instead of an advantage. English words used in trademarks are often unpronounceable in Spanish and the consumer has to make known his wants by signs or pictures. If the manufacturer would change his trademark so that the Latin-American could pronounce it he would circumvent the pirates and popularize his article. And the intrinsic value of the goods would establish the market for the manufacturers."

BLACK-BERRY BEAR AND HENRY JOCK

—Second Year—
The Seasons change, and another year has rolled around till September's here, and so is Jack and with gun and pall he goes for black-berries up the mountain trail.

The path at first winds through alders and cherries;
Through laurel and fern-strewn thickets by fairies;
Through second growth benches, birch maple and pine
To the heights of the spruce forested by all as divine.

Through shady ravines, rock strewn and moss grown
Where a murmuring rill plashes round a large stone,
Plays at "hide-and-go seek,"—the sun on his track
He hides in the earth—bubbling sparkling come back.

The trail through this valley crossed many a ledge,
Till at last it winds up to the top of a ridge,
Where acres of bushes, with black-berries ripe,
Greet the eyes of the pilgrim,—a beautiful sight.

But what is that movement where fruit laden low
The bushes are swayed to the right by a blow?
The cause is not wanting, for 'tis a bear's paw
And it brushes the fruit to his wide open maw.

Then Henry got busy with his good Remington—
He rained leaden hail from his wonderful gun.
Till Henry sank down,—was hidden from sight,
While Jack just stood listening with all of his might.

As no sound came from the beast he feared
Jack pushed through the bushes where the form disappeared
And there lay the monster with a furry black coat
Which Henry slipped off,—over that hide did he groat?

Well, yes! and then casting a glance at the carcass—
It resembled a mouse,—showed with big muscles a shuffling mass.
He ripped with his knife for he wanted to know
If a bear on the inside bore the likeness home.

So carefully he cut to the very inside
When to his surprise a black furry hide Came pushing its way through the putting there

And he skinned two pelts from the black furry bear.

If, of course is remarkable, two skins from one brute.
But Jack has the pelts our doubts to confute.
He says 'twas the same bear without any doubt.
That just the year previous, he turned inside out.

NOTES FROM THE NEWINGTON SHIP PLANT

The first launching on July 4th will take place at 8 o'clock in the morning. Decorators will work a wonderful transformation when the guests arrive on the morning of July 4th.

The death of William Hammond, as a result of his falling on Saturday afternoon is the first death among the crew of 2500 men. He was a wonderful old man and a friend and companion of all. No man in the trenches worked with a greater zeal or force than did this veteran shipbuilder. He put his whole soul into his work and was the life and encouragement of all his associates. He was not only a veteran in years and as a shipbuilder but a veteran of the great world war and he gave up his life in the preparation and defense of his country. He was an American through and through and loved every inch of ground over which Old Glory waves. His death will be learned with much regret and sorrow by the fine army of shipbuilders employed in Newington.

MORE CARS FOR P. D. & Y.

General Manager W. G. Meloon of the P. D. and Y. has finally succeeded in securing three open cars from the Portland street railway to help out traffic conditions on this road. It has been impossible to buy or borrow or lease railroad equipment since the war. Through personal connections in Portland, he has succeeded in securing these cars which are now being brought over the electric railway to York for use.

Portsmouth was in the line of light over the week end.

On their return some time later his clothing was found on the river bank but no trace of the missing young man had been found up to early this morning.

FALL FROM STAGING CAUSES DEATH OF AGED SHIPWRIGHT

William Hammond, Expert at Ship Work, Dies at Local Hospital.

William Hammond, one of the oldest and best known shipwrights in this section died at the Portsmouth Hospital early Sunday morning as the result of an accident on Saturday at the Newington shipyard.

He sustained a fractured skull in a fall of 18 feet from a staging and remained unconscious until his death. His death removes one of the last of the old school of expert shipbuilders.

He was a native of Eliot, Me., and during his life has held responsible position with shipbuilding firms in California, Norfolk, New York, Boston and other cities.

At the opening of the Shattuck plant at Newington he became a most valuable employee of that corporation and owing to his expert knowledge of wooden ship construction he was selected by the emergency fleet officials to go to the south and west to purchase the necessary lumber for the fleet of vessels now under construction at Newington.

Although nearly 80 years old he was as active as a man 30 years his junior and had much to do with the vessels on the ways at Newington. He was to have had charge of the launching of the three ships on July 4th.

In his younger days he was foreman of the Portsmouth shipyard at Freeman's Point and built many of the famous ships that helped to make Portsmouth's history.

Previous to his entering the employ of the Shattuck Company he worked at the Portsmouth navy yard. He is survived by a wife, three sons, Joseph P. and William R. of Raymond, and John D. of Rye and one daughter, Mattie J. Holmes of Rye and several grand children.
